SUMMER 1952

In this catalogue you will find many TRAILWISE articles. All items that are TRAILWISE are those that were either designed or improved by me in an effort to give the back packer or camper the best possible equipment. In developing the TRAILWISE line, full attention was given to lightness of weight, ruggedness of construction, and maximum utilization. To our many customers, I want to extend my thanks for their aid in helping to design the TRAILWISE articles. Your suggestions to modify, or even introduce something entirely new, will be appreciated.

These foods offer the greatest saving in weight. The most modern method of dehydrating foods has improved the quality and has also reduced the cooking time required for many items. The saving in weight varies from 25% to 90%. It is claimed by many manufacturers that the vitamin content is unimpaired by dehydration, and these claims have been borne out in many instances by laboratory tests. Our selection of dehydrated foods has been based on actual tests.
